CLASS PROPHECY

Five years had passed and I, Tracy Rice, went back to "Glenwood by the hill" for my class reunion. I had moved to seek my fortune in sunny California. Shellie Clark, Angee Spriggs, and Kim Egerton had decided that the western United States called them as well. We took the same flight so that we could use the hours to talk about old times.

The four of us were now famous. I had published two best-selling novels and the three others had bought MGM Studios and just finished producing and directing the movie Friday the 13th, Part 20.

When the plane landed at Columbus Airport at 5:30 a.m., we piled into our limo and turned on Good Morning America which was hosted by Bill Bentley and Pam Weisenhofer. They were interviewing Brian Gilliam who was campaigning for the office of President of the United States. He announced that his vice-president would be Mark Payton and his attorney general would be Tom Stone.

The drive was long, but we finally made it. As we passed the Big Bear Plus store, Angee mentioned that Jason Vaughn and Pat Euton now owned the Big Bear chain.

When we arrived in New Boston, we had reservations at the new hotel called Zatoad's Royal Palace. It was one of the top five hotel/night clubs in the entire country. The owners were Amanda Phillips and Keri Hamilton. After high school they became ambitious and with the help of a financing company, they were able to start one of the most "swingin'" places in the nation.

The bellboy, Tim Reed, carried our luggage to the lobby. He told us that the Miss America Pageant had made a tremendous impact on New Boston. Julia Lewis, who was Miss Ohio, competed for the title. After the scores were tabulated, it was revealed that the new Miss America 1999 was Julia. She was doing an excellent job.

We spent the afternoon walking around New Boston, starting with Millbrook Park and working our way up toward the high school. The park was lovelier than ever. The council had put fresh cement with stars in the ground just like in Hollywood, and asked famous and successful people to put their handprints in the cement. Julia had already been there and so had Brian Gilliam, Mandy Jamison, and, of course, the four of us had been there. Mandy was famous because she was the first woman ever to walk on the moon. She lived in Australia now and that continent got all the credit, but she never forgot little New Boston.

After looking at the prints, we stopped at Jozz Pizza, which was now owned by Karen Pollard. Just like the owner during 1994, she didn't allow teenagers in there either.

Next, we walked to Mike's Pizza Depot and ordered a pizza for lunch. Ryan Morrow was eating, and he invited us to share his table. He told us he was working at the hospital as a physical therapist.

Later, we walked to the American Restaurant which had been franchised. Crystal Cooley, Melissa Barry, Samantha McGraw, Tammy Carr, and Tina Yazell were all managers of restaurants in different states.

That evening we decided to treat ourselves to the wonderful entertainment of the hotel. Amanda and Keri joined us, and Amanda told us about Chris Spencer, Aaron Malone, John Magnatta, and Jeremy Elliott.

Chris was an accountant for a major corporation by day and a stand-up comedian by night. Angie, Shellie and Kim were so impressed with his performance at Zatoad's that they offered him a contract with MGM on the spot.

John was a bartender for the hotel. Amanda and Keri had felt so sorry for Aaron and Jeremy after their tragic case with the NBA that they had hired them as waiters at the giant hotel. They had been fired for harassing the cheerleaders of the opposing team.

After the reunion and seeing everyone again, we paused for a moment of silence on the plane back to California. Angie, Kim, Shellie, and I decided then and there that although the Class of '94 was not the biggest to graduate from Glenwood that we had dared to go where no man or woman gone before. We were, in fact, the most profitable and successful people to be linked with the high school. We, as a class, had helped New Boston become famous once again, and all of us planned to keep it that way. We vowed to keep the passion for fame and excellence alive.

A high-contrast, black and white photograph of a large crowd of people, likely at a sports event. The crowd is dense, filling the frame from the foreground to the background. Many individuals are wearing light-colored clothing, possibly white shirts or jerseys. The word "SPORTS" is printed in a bold, serif font across the center of the image, superimposed over the crowd. The overall style is grainy and high-contrast, typical of a newspaper clipping or a stylized print.

VARSITY VOLLEYBALL

QUEENS OF THE COURT

Most people believe that volleyball season begins when school starts. That's not true. For the Lady Tigers, their season started early summer with many strenuous practices in the Tiger Den. They were determined to BUMP, SET, KILL at any time.

The 1993 Lady Tigers won their first S.O.C. title since the 1988-89 school year which was the first ever in Lady Tiger history. The girls knew from the beginning of the season they had a shot at their division title.

The team was led by one senior Samantha McGraw and five juniors. "When the tigers got their act together and worked as a team, we were unstoppable," commented junior players, Missy Lytten and Rachel Fetty.

The Queens of the Court could never forget their 1993 volleyball season because it was a season to remember.

Junior Kristie Gilley is down and ready for the ball during practice. She was one of the five starting juniors on the team.

The Queens of the Court celebrate after a victory. This was the first home game of the season and Lady Tigers defeated Portsmouth.

RIVER DAYS

When I was a little girl I remember going to the River Days Parade and wondering how those girls on the floats got to do that. I always wanted to be on one of those floats but, I never knew what it took to get there. I eventually found out.

I was so surprised when Shellie Clark, my best friend, came in sixth period home economics class and said, "Congratulations Tracy! You're the Miss River Days Candidate!" I was nervous up until the day of the vote. I had friends that had faith in me. I had support from many people to be elected.

After I was elected, I had a rough road ahead of me filled with work, determination, stamina, and poise. I had to learn to forget embarrassment and be a role model for the entire county. I had to arrange myself and become a spotlighted figure for my school.

On September 4, 1993, after all the hard work was complete and the preparing was over, it was time to put all that to the test. I did the best that I possibly could in my representation to the judges. I tried to project everything positive I had in me. I feel that I succeeded in this.

In my true opinion, I feel that all of the hard work, effort, and time I put into the events that led up to the River Days interview, parade, and pageant and the actual event in itself paid off in the end. Even though I did not win an official title I am still a true winner. No one else can carry the prestige and honor of being Miss Glenwood 1993 with them for the rest of their lives. No one else can sit down with their children in the years to come and tell them of the memories of being a candidate and having the spotlight for just a little while. No one will ever be able to do that but me.

1994

Amanda, Crystal, and Aaron review speeches before graduation.

Mandy gratefully accepts her diploma.

Karen receives her diploma with great joy.

Ryan Morrow, being of intelligent mind and pretty good body leave to Tony Spiess my wardrobe so he'll have something different to wear everyday. Whatever you do, please don't peg my pants! And to Matt Collier my fourth stall in the downstairs bathroom to use before basketball practice. Keep it quiet in there.

Keri Hamilton, being of sound mind and body, leave to Carrie Bishop my undying sensitivity.

Brian Gilliam, being of extraordinary mind and body as well, do here by leave to the Junior class not a single thing; for who among it is quite worthy?

Chris Spencer, being of not so much mind and nobodys body, leave my smart mouth to Brad, but I forgot, you don't need it, so I'll leave it to Brandi. I also leave to Brandi the strength to make it through the last year. Lord knows you need it. And to the rest I leave nothing but my love for the Doors!

Amanda Phillips, leave my puppy Sqweezie in the care of Emily and Matt. Keep her away from Big Dog.

Aunge Spriggs, leave to Brandy Gilliam my great attitude.

Tracey Rice, being of sound mind and "so far so good" body do here by leave to Brad my Doors tapes and CD's. To Brandi Smith I leave my Morrison poster, movie, and books along with Antonio Saboto, Jr. posters. The movie "Who Done It?" to both of the above individuals, and my title Miss Glenwood to Becky Mershon. You earned it and you only had to run once. My ghost is gift enough for the rest.

I, Tim Reed, being of not so sound mind and extremely body, leave my ability to get a decent looking girlfriend to Eric Smith. To Emily Phillips, I leave my ability to raise Cain (trust me, Emily, you need it). To Jim Wentte, I leave my smart-aleck attitude — this will just about double what you already have. I leave some normal clothes and music to Carrie Bishop, and last, but not least, I leave my ability to get a decent haircut to Paul Wagner.

I, Patrick Euton, of corrupt mind and ravishing body, leave Carrie Bishop my ability to dress normally. To Jim Wentte, my ability to keep on rollin'. To Rick Bolda my ability to scare Walmart workers.

I, Chief Malone, being of sound mind and body, leave to Hollywood the ability to pick up women at Crispie Creme Doughnuts, and to Big Dog, I would leave my ability to wear ultimate wardrobes, but Morrow has already accomplished that, so I will leave the ability to wear tennis shoes that match with his outfits.

I, Julia Lewis, being of unsound mind and in a state absolute confusion leave to Brandi Smith my ability to be a perfect snob, my place at the table, and my ability to keep out of trouble. I know you'll need it.

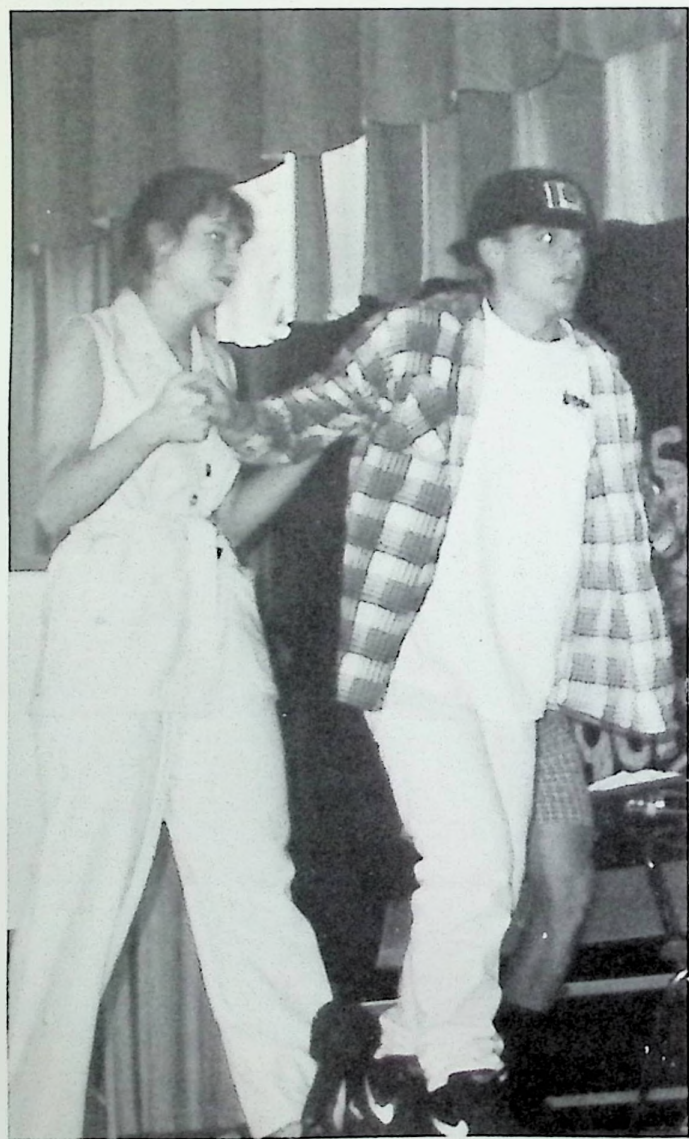

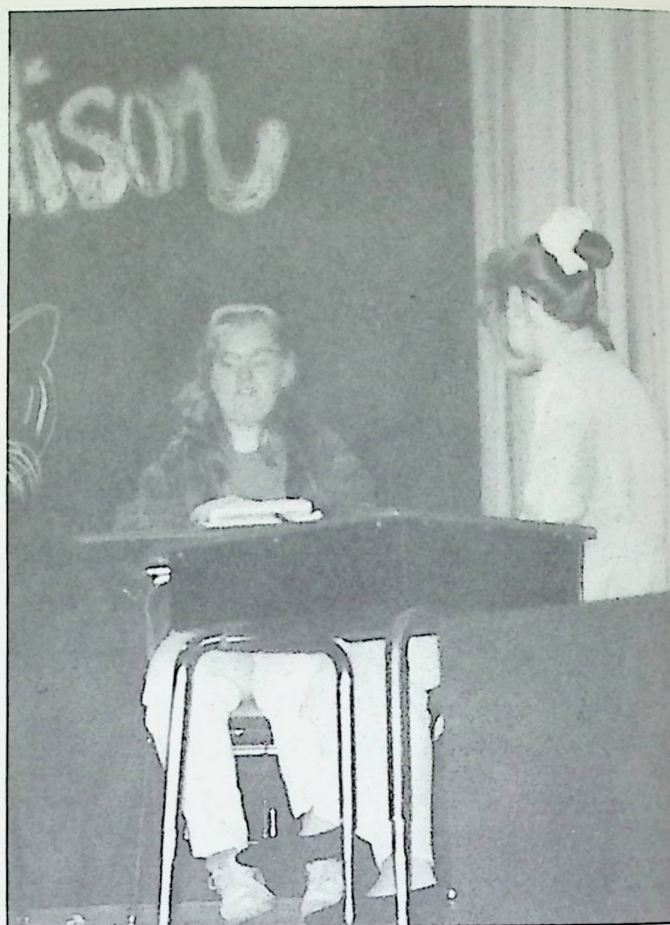

I, Bill Bentley, being of sound mind and heavenly body leave to Brent Marshall my tremendous courage.

I, Mark Payton, being of sound mind and perfect body, leave to Billy Truitt, my two English classes. To Brandy Gilliam, my sexy personality, and to Brent Marshall, my wit.

I, Thomas Stone, being of sound mind and disproportionate body, leave half of everything I have to the Junior class. Divide it amongst yourselves evenly; there's plenty to go around.

A high-contrast, black and white photograph showing a massive crowd of people from a rear perspective. The individuals are densely packed, filling the entire frame, and appear to be seated in a large arena or stadium. The image has a grainy, high-contrast quality, with many figures appearing as dark silhouettes against a lighter background. The word "ORGANIZATIONS" is superimposed in a large, serif, all-caps font across the middle of the image.
